News (Bloomberg)

- Consumer confidence fell last week to the lowest level in almost four months and more people than forecast filed claims for unemployment benefits, showing a lack of progress in the job market is rattling Americans.
- Canada's dollar will probably depreciate further against its U.S. counterpart after weakening past a pivotal technical level, reversing a bullish trend, according to Royal Bank of Canada.
- The impact on oil prices from sanctions on Iran will be on the agenda when President Barack Obama meets with other leaders of the Group of Eight nations.
